siGN	joKEr	wiLDcard			NiB		brOKen		ONe		doWN

brOKen is a form of Radical 5, siGN. RKB separates them because of their different appearance. brOKen often appears as a vertical and a horizontal with a 90° angle between them and no terminal hook. If a terminal hook makes no difference, for example in a large character in which the calligrapher found it expedient to omit the hook, we may also omit it. The terminal hook is, however, the only difference between wiLDcard and doWN, so obviously it cannot be omitted there.

Other inconsequential differences may be seen. The first stroke of SLOpe is seen as ONe in classic writing, as joKEr in the modern.

Reminder: The absence of a number in one of the upper corners implies that the missing form is to be found elsewhere in this Appendix. A hyphen (small dash) in one or the other corner indicates that that Radical is not part of the Classic or Modern draft — at the present time. Who knows what tomorrow will bring?

Classic may append the same number to 2 forms: PLaque and SEal are both 26; CLeaver and BLade are 18. RKB separates them into different Trios — their usage demands it. In some cases, the Indie gets next to no usage and so, gets no Trio, e.g., AC, AS and BA.

Reminder: Some classic forms, i.e., the 8-stroke LONg, q.v., are not continued in the Modern list, meaning they're no longer productive. Nevertheless, they have a modern form (4 strokes but no number designation) to include in otherwise Modern characters.
